The future of work is inclusive - are you going to be there?

MentorAbility Canada Project is a national initiative by the Canadian Association for Supported Employment (CASE) which helps employers, people who have a disability and service provider organizations to get results in workplace inclusion.

MentorAbility enlists one or more members of a workplace to mentor a "matched" Protégé who has a disability who wants to learn more about that workplace or career. The MentorAbility Experience is coordinated by a local employment service provider and is 1 hour to 1 day long at the employer's discretion.

Each MentorAbility Experience provides opportunity for job-seekers to increase their knowledge of that industry or career – while providing workplaces with increased familiarity and competencies with this diverse group.
